(57) Abstract :

The present invention discloses an intelligent surveillance system and method for regulating and analysing behaviour of a person or law enforcement officers and mitigating excessive force. By fusing advanced AI capabilities with body-worn cameras, the system actively monitors and regulates officer behaviour in real-time, with a specific focus on mitigating instances of excessive force. Facial recognition, audio analysis, and movement pattern recognition contribute to a comprehensive assessment of officer conduct, enabling immediate feedback and intervention when potential issues arise. The system's centralized analytics platform facilitates ongoing monitoring, generates comprehensive reports, and contributes to long-term improvements in law enforcement practices. The innovative solution of the present invention aligns with the evolving expectations for transparency, accountability, and responsible policing in the modern era.
